

Experts in international construction and engineering disputes

Description

Fairway required a combination of redesign and rebranding of their website to help them communicate their established and diverse business. Their website needed to deliver the messages of their scale and reputation, whilst providing easy access for visitors.

The design of the site needed to be fully developed, with updated layout, and flexibility to add and vary content on the homepage. The user experience was of paramount importance, as Fairway's business dictates that some of the content which would otherwise be included may have to be withheld due to commercial sensitivities, so we created an overall the design that was simple and uncomplicated, projecting a clean, corporate and professional image. Increased use of photographic imagery was used to add inserts and to help avoid longer passages of text.

This site went live in approximately 6 weeks from receipt of your order.
